Former Northfield Man Wed in Montague

Miss Patricia Ann Wonsey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Wonsey of Federal St., Montague, became the bride of William Stewart of Greenfield in a double ring service at the Congregational church in Montague Saturday, Feb. 16. Rev. Henry J. Rohrs, pastor, performed the service. The bride was attended by Miss Irene Minott of Greenfield, and the best man was Robert Coutu of Turners Falls. Ushers were Dorrae Graves and Henry Wonsey. Mrs. Florence Smith, organist, played traditional wedding music.

The bride's gown was of white lace in ballerina length, with a fitted jacket and bouffant skirt. Her circular, finger-tip length veil was held by a tiara of pearls and sequins. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses encircled by white carnations. Miss Minott's gown was lilac lace of ballerina length and she wore a headpiece of lilac net and roses. Her bouquet was of yellow roses.

The bride's mother wore a dark blue dress and corsage of red roses. The church was decorated with red and white carnations. Miss Barbara Graves had charge of the guest book.

A reception for 100 guests was held at Grange hall. The bride is a native of Montague and graduated from Turners Falls High school in 1954. She is employed at McLellan's store in Greenfield.

While in Northfield William Stewart lived with Mr. and Mrs. George Newton and attended the schools here. A member of Co. L, he is employed by the Millers Falls Tool Company.

For traveling the bride wore a powder blue dress, blue and white accessories and a corsage of yellow roses. After their wedding trip the couple will make their home on Federal St. in Montague.

School for Girls Plans International Week-End Feb. 22-24

International Week-end will be celebrated at Northfield School for Girls, Feb. 22-24. Guests will include foreign students from nearby colleges. The program will begin Friday evening when the guests will join the students at a concert given by the Mount Hermon-Northfield orchestra and at which the Northfield Motet will sing. Sports and informal entertainment will occupy Saturday morning and evening. The high point of the week-end will be a lecture with slides by Dr. Herbert Gezork, president of Andover-Newton Theological Seminary. Dr. Gezork's subject will be "The Soviet Union and the West" and the lecture will be followed by a question and answer period. A Sunday morning coffee will be held in the library at 9:45 and guests will attend chapel at 11 a.m. when Professor William Muehl of Yale Divinity School will preach.

Church Notes

Unitarian

The Afternoon Alliance met Thursday, Feb. 4 at 2:30 in the church parlors with Mrs. Oler Doolittle presiding. Fifty dollars was voted to the church and smaller sums to the Polio Drive and to the Dr. Joslin Camp for Diabetic Boys. The Sewing Committee has presented a quilt to the Johnson family whose home was recently burned. Mrs. Gertrude Whitney, secretary, read a paper on "Travel, Taverns and Turnpikes in Old New England," and told of several inns where George Washington had stopped. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Doolittle, Mrs. Spaulding and Mrs. Myron Dwight. A letter was read from Mrs. Sydney Marcy stating that her husband had been in a Chicago hospital for a time but has improved under treatment and is expected to return to the Honduras Mission, Central America.

There were eight tables at play at the Laymen's League, Men's card party Tuesday evening, Feb. 19. Prizes were awarded as follows: Whist, high, Fred Erickson; low, Frank Williams. Hearts, high, Vera Martin; low, Clarence Spaulding. Pitch, high, William Slate; low, Kenneth Lee Miller and the door prize went to Mrs. Erma Knapp. Refreshments were served.

Bernardston Unitarian Church

Rev. Robert S. Slater, Minister. Mrs. Theodore Cronyn, Organist. Mrs. Hazel Schaufus, Choir director. Worship service with sermon at 11:15 a.m. Special choral selection by the junior choir under the direction of Mrs. Kenneth North. Visitors are always welcome. Children may be left in the Sunday School during the service.

School of religious education at 11:15 a.m. Mrs. Robert S. Slater, Supt. Classes for all ages from 5 to the teens. Worship service, story talk & teaching by girls from the Northfield School for Girls.

The young people of the church will meet before and after the church service for their junior choir rehearsal. All young people of the community who wish to sing are welcome. To raise money for their group they will sell home-made candy after the church service.

The church will sponsor a public card party at the Town Hall Saturday, March 2, at 8 p.m. Progressive whist will be played followed by prizes and refreshments.

Tomorrow, Saturday, February 23, young people of the church will attend a Connecticut Valley Lib-

'Red' Porter in action

'Red' Porter In Top Spot On University Cage Team

Norman "Red" Porter, sophomore from Northfield, is the first really big man Coach Bob Curran has had for his University of Massachusetts basketball team. The 6' 7"—210 pound redhead is the leading rebounder for the Redmen in spite of the fact that he isn't a starter. Norm is averaging just less than 10 rebounds per game and is the leading shooter percentage wise on the University quintet.

Coach Bob Curran claims that the former Mount Hermon academy and Northfield High hoop star is a rarity in college basketball as he is a big man who also has a fine set shot. Right now Norm ranks as the number six man on the University of Massachusetts basketball squad which will climax its season next week against Colby in the Boston Garden on Tuesday night and then against the University of Maine at the Curry Hicks cage on Saturday night.

Norm Porter is a sure-fire bet to be the regular center for the Redmen next winter. His experience as a sophomore in top-flight competition even more valuable in another year. Porter is big but he has speed and agility. He dunked in 198 rebounds for the Redmen Frosh quintet last year.

In the recent Connecticut game in the Curry Hicks cage big "Red" was terrific around the boards against the tall UConn. Unfortunately Red fouled out early in the game. Coach Curran felt that with Red in action for forty minutes that Massachusetts would have made hoop history for the second straight year by knocking off NCAA-bound Connecticut. Without Porter in the lineup the Huskies controlled both boards and won the game.

Coach Bob Curran feels that Porter will reach his potential next season and that for his last two years this physical education major from Northfield will be a leading contender for All Yankee Conference and All New England hoop honors.

FAUST IS SUBJECT OF UM LECTURE

Residents of Northfield will be interested to learn that Victor Lange, chairman of the department of German literature at Cornell University, will lecture on Goethe's Faust at the University of Massachusetts on Feb. 27.

Jointly sponsored by the departments of German and English, Prof. Lange's lecture will be in the ballroom of the Student Union at 8 p.m.

German by birth, Dr. Lange has studied at Oxford, the Sorbonne, Toronto and Leipzig, and has been

Larry Doyle To Speak At Last 'Word of Life' Campaign Meeting

The final meeting in the series of nine Word of Life Campaign meetings will feature Larry Doyle, youth leader and speaker, at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 28. His discussion will be preceded by the showing of a color sound film, "Teenager," at 7 p.m.

Special music and awarding of attendance prizes will accompany Mr. Doyle's discussion.

As a member of the staff of the Word of Life Fellowship, Mr. Doyle is touring the United States and Canada, speaking in youth rallies and campaigns. His dynamic messages appeal to young and old alike, but he devotes much of his time to youth, as he himself so recently faced the same problems that confront young people today.

Growing up in New York City, Larry was a typical teen-ager, longing to be "one of the gang." He lived the usual "run of the mill" existence, highlighted with thrills which he sought in gang fights, drinking parties and other questionable activities which contribute to juvenile delinquency.

But, this was not to be his life. In the summer of 1951, against his own will, Larry attended Word of Life Island in the Adirondacks. As he puts it, "I arrived at camp on a Sunday night, and was all set to leave on Monday morning. As I looked around, I saw young fellows and girls carrying Bibles and singing gospel hymns and choruses. I said to myself, 'This place isn't for me!'"

However, Larry was persuaded to stay an extra day at camp, and that evening, after hearing the plan of salvation from God's Word, Larry made the all-important decision to accept Christ. Immediately there was a change. Old habits fell off, and his life took on new zest and meaning.

That fall Larry Doyle entered the Providence Barrington Bible College, where he received his degree in 1955. As a leader there, he took part in many of the extra activities and was president of the student body. He also found time to preach in street corner work, and he traveled for the school in gospel team work for three years, speaking at many youth rallies.

During the summer months, Doyle was head counselor at the Word of Life Island for three years, where his enthusiasm for the gospel influenced many young people for Christ.

Mr. and Mrs. Doyle direct the Word of Life Ranch for children on Schroon Lake each summer.

Larry Doyle, who will speak at the last of a series of nine "Word of Life Campaigns."

And While We're Waiting...

The vice president-in-charge-of-getting-the-mail was somewhat curious this Tuesday when he brought in a large package marked "Food Editor." This is unusual. The composing room gets large, heavy, interesting packages, but this one was the first the vice president could remember for the editorial department. So he waited around for the Food Editor to open it. And when the news editor had adjusted her chef's hat and neatly snipped open the box with a meat cleaver, what do you suppose was there?

The cows down in the south forty had better look at their D.H.I.A. records. Perk up those dainty ears, Daisy. For enclosed was a fine example of a dried milk product, together with a plastic mixing container and full instructions. And—guess what! Down in the bottom, just on top of the excelsior, was a neatly mimeographed news release.

Well, the food editor slowly took off the chef's cap. When she had reassumed her stance as news editor, she said to herself, "You can't print this—not in Northfield, where they expect local news of the Northfield Press."

So, Mr. Borden, or Mr. Carnation, or Mr. Pet—whatever your name is—take back your sample. Dried milk is not for us. We like to blow the froth off our golden, contented homogenized milk—no substitutes, please.

However, we are waiting to hear from Mr. Tiffany or Mr. Chrysler. We might be tempted...

Gleanings from the Book Studio

"A library reflects one's prejudices, one's limitations, one's personality. As Mr. Birrell remarks in one of his essays, the wise collector may look at his books and say, 'These are mine, and I am theirs.' A library that fails to mirror its owner's personality has neither life nor meaning. It is a mere affectation."

—Paul Jordan Smith

"Books never pall on us... They discourse with us, they take counsel with us, and are united to us by a certain living familiarity. It is easy to gain access to these friends, for they are always at our service, and we can admit them to our company, or dismiss them from it, whenever we please. They are never troublesome, but immediately answer every question we ask them."—Petrarch

Francesco Petrarch, author of the above quotation, was an Italian poet and humanist, born at Arezzo on July 20, 1304. He devoted most of his life to study and writing, becoming the leader of the revival of learning in Italy. He was crowned poet laureate in Rome in April of 1341. His prose works include letters, orations, biographies, autobiographical writings, and moral and philosophical discourses. His greatest friend was the author and poet Giovanni Boccaccio, who wrote the "Decameron," one of the most famous books in all literature. Petrarch was found dead among his beloved books on July 18, 1374. With him modern culture really began.

Next to Shakespeare, John Milton is the greatest figure in English literature. He was born in London on Dec. 9, 1608. Most of us, no doubt, recall reading his "Il Pensero" and "L'Allegro" back in our high school days. In 1644 he wrote a speech against licensing and censorship of the press entitled "Areopagitica," which is probably the most popular of his prose works. Two of his best known works are "Paradise Lost" and "Paradise Regained." "Paradise Lost" was started in 1658 but was not finished until July 1665 and was published in Sept. 1666 the year made memorable by the plague and the great fire in London. All that Milton received from his publisher for the manuscript was five pounds (about twenty-five dollars) and was assured of a similar amount for each succeeding edition. The first edition of thirteen hundred copies was sold in eighteen months. Strange to say, "Paradise Regained" was written before the publication of "Paradise Lost," but was not published until 1671. The longest and most important of Milton's minor poems is that entitled "Comus." This, however, is not the name given it by Milton. He merely called it "A Masque Presented at Ludlow Castle, 1634, on Michaelmas Night, before John, Earl of Bridgewater, Lord President of Wales." He died Nov. 8, 1674.

Did you read "The Day Lincoln Was Shot," written by Jim Bishop? If you did you will eagerly look forward to his new work entitled "The Day Christ Died," to be published by Harper and Brothers on May 15. This is a book for every reader of every faith. Years of intensive research have gone into this story of the day that changed the world. It is an hour-by-hour account of the most dramatic day in the history of civilization, starting at 6 p.m. on the even of the Passover, 30 A.D., until 4 p.m. of the day that would afterward be called Good

I wanted to give a little information about George Washington, farmer, but it will have to wait until next week. I would like to conclude this week's column with a short poem, author unknown called "Companionship:"
"Tis the human touch in this world that counts —
The touch of your hand and mine. Which means far more to the fainting heart
Than shelter and bread and wine. For shelter is gone when the night is o'er,
And bread lasts only a day:
But the touch of the hand and the sound of the voice
Sing on in the soul away."

Social and Personal News Notes of the Northfield Area

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Moody and E. M. Powell Jr. went to the dinner in Springfield Saturday given by the Pioneer Valley Association for Governor Furcolo.

Dr. and Mrs. F. Wilton Dean and Russell left Wednesday, Feb. 13, to visit Dr. Dean's sister and aunt in St. Petersburg, Fla. They will visit their daughter and son, Janet and Norman, at Duke University on the way down. Mrs. Dean and Russell will return Feb. 25. Dr. Dean plans to return March 3.

On Feb. 15 a daughter, Carolyn Baker Murdock, was born to Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Murdock of Pittsburgh. Mrs. Murdock is the former Maryellen Bollman of East Northfield and Lancaster, Pa.

Lt. Donald A. Loos, recently returned from Korea and Japan, has bought a home in Baltimore and is stationed at Fort Holabird. His address is Lt. Donald A. Loos, IS, USAIC, D/C1, Ft. Holabird, Baltimore 19, Maryland. His wife and two sons remained in this country with her family in Ohio during his absence. They have joined him in Baltimore and all hope to visit the Loos home on The Ridge this summer.

The Unitarian Church has purchased a slide and film strip projector and screen for the use of the church and Sunday School. Those wishing to use it should contact Mrs. Kenneth Miller.

Douglas Sloane, founder of the Cathedral in the Pines, writes that he is now compiling schedule for summer events. He hopes to include the Northfield Conference Choir in the program. This year he plans to feature several preparatory schools: Cushing Academy is to sponsor the Easter sunrise service; Dana Hall brings their whole school for an annual service.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Moore and their daughter, Mary Helen Neuenendorfer, and family of New London, Conn., returned this weekend for winter sports. Mr. Neuenendorfer is in the ship-building business, and is a graduate of Annapolis. He and Mr. Moore both own homes on the Ridge.

Miss Elsie Eckman, hymn writer and director of music in twenty-two schools in Boston, is spending a week at the home of Mrs. W. R. Moody. Miss Eckman used to be organist at the General Conference in Augusts during W. R. Moody's lifetime and helped edit the fourth and last Northfield hymnal.

The John P. Archibalds have returned to Hayden Hall at Mt. Hermon after spending a month at The Northfield Hotel. Mr. Archibald is head of the Bible Department.

Mrs. Henry F. Cutler writes that she is enjoying her winter months in her apartment at 500 Virginia Court, Winter Park, Florida. She spends her summers in East Northfield at the D. L. Moody Birthplace, part of which is a faculty club. Mrs. Cutler was on the faculty of Mt. Hermon.

Mr. and Mrs. Dana Leavis have returned from Florida after a two week vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. David Quinn have gone to Florida for a vacation.

Mrs. Hazel Purrington, of East Northfield, who died Sunday, made her home when in West Hartford with her two daughters. The older daughter, Mrs. James Carpenter, who was on the faculty of the Northfield School for Girls, now lives at 29 Thompson Road, West Hartford.

Miss Mabel Darrah showed slides of the Northfield School for Girls at the meeting of the Friendly Group at Mrs. Edgar J. Livingston's Monday evening.

Miss Helen Podlinski gave a stork shower for Mrs. George Butynski.

After a long illness Mrs. Harvey Jack is at home again and hopes to go to Florida soon.

Members and friends of the church are asked to plan for next Sunday—the first in March, which will be "Guest Sunday." Each regular attendant is asked to bring a friend. Those who haven't attended lately are asked to start once again.

Saturday, Feb. 23, young people of the church are attending a Connecticut Valley Liberal Religious Youth Federation meeting at the Universalist church of Palmer, Mass. The meeting will last from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. It will start with worship, then a business meeting, recreation, lunch and conclude with Ronald Ashley speaking on
"Youth in a Whirl Pool World."

All young people who wish to attend the Federation meeting in Palmer should contact David Billings for plans on transportation.

Publisher Speaks On 'Freedom' At Fortnightly

The Fortnightly meeting Friday opened with a brief business session. Mrs. Ross L. Spencer, president, spoke with pride of one of the new member's accomplishments—two articles by Mrs. A. E. Davis printed in "Musical Journal."

A musical program by pupils of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Gancarz followed. "The March of the Tiny Soldiers" was played by Joanne Mann, "Sonatina" by Enid Maynard, and "None But The Lonely Heart" by Richard Maynard, all piano pupils of Mrs. Gancarz. A cornet duet "Czech Dance Song" was played by Gail Leonard and William Marcy, and a trombone duet, "Fair Are The Meadows" by Henry Prescott and Paul Abbey. "Slumber Song," a duet for saxophone and clarinet, was played by Dennis Lanphear and Robert Duncan.

At the end of the concert the ensemble played "Nature's Praise To God" by Beethoven, accompa-

Korean Ambassador To Discuss World Affairs At Fortnightly

The public is invited to an open meeting of The Fortnightly at 3 p.m. Friday, March 1, in Town Hall. Ben C. Limb, Korean ambassador to the United Nations, will discuss world affairs.

Col. Limb, a native of Korea, first saw Northfield in 1913 when he became a student at Mt. Hermon School. Before his graduation from Mt. Hermon in 1918 he was president of the Cosmopolitan club and won a second prize in a declamation contest.

He completed his education at Ohio State College and was later awarded an honorary LL.D. degree by Adolphus College in St. Peter, Minn.

During the Korean revolution against Japan in 1919, Col. Limb was an aide to Syngman Rhee and his private secretary until 1949. He was made a colonel of the army of the provisional government in Korea in 1945.

Appointed minister of foreign affairs of the Republic of Korea in 1949, Col. Limb is now an ambasador-at-large for Korea and is a permanent representative to the U. S. from the Republic of Korea.

Col. Limb has written numerous articles; among them are his statement to the first committee of the tenth session of the General Assembly of the United Nations and "The Pacific Past; Looking Forward or Backward?"

Col. Limb was principal speaker at the annual meeting of Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs in 1951.

Footprints on the snow can be illuminating and revealing. Who passed by?

Have you ever thought of being a track detective? Or making animal tracks your hobby?

Even though you do not know the name of the animal that made the track you can tell a great deal about the owner just from looking at the trail it leaves. It is possible to tell whether the animal was large or small, where and in what direction it was going and if the gait was slow or fast—all from the size, shape and arrangement of the prints.

You may be able to tell what it ate, or something about how it spends the winter. This information helps to know more about the life story of the animal as you look, follow and ponder a printed trail in the snow.

After a light snowfall tracks are more clearly defined and easier to determine. If the snow is too deep tracks will be merely holes and you will be unable to distinguish the details, so a light layer of snow is best for tracking which, incidentally, is a very old science.

Out of the house some early morning you may have thought you were the first one up, but as you look around you see numerous tracks, some familiar and others strange and unfamiliar. These print-makers have been up before you—during the night or very early morning. You may find lots of tracks in certain places and none in others.

You may not see these animals, that venture forth in winter but a track in the snow betrays their presence. Every creature writes a record of its activities.

Follow a trail to see where it leads. Now your sleuthing instinct can come to the fore, and your powers of deduction aroused. Go about it scientifically, if you will. Measure distances between front and back feet and between left and right feet. Is there a tail mark? Can you tell whether the animal was running, walking or hopping? Is it the track of a mammal or a bird? Any wing marks? These are very characteristic.

Sketch the tracks you find on paper. Keep accurate records. To observe and record is the way of all naturalists. Check your findings with illustrations in Olaus Murie's "Field Guide to Animal Tracks." Consult also Ernest Thompson Seton's books. They have a wealth of track information on the margins.

Once your interest is aroused you will be able to read animal language from a snow printed diary. Scientists know a lot about the habits of some animals and very little about the habits and distribution of others. You may just possibly see things people all over the world would like to know about. It is a thought worth remembering. Keep your eyes open.

Snow isn't the only place to look for animal tracks. Dust, soft mud, wet sand, dry sand give ample opportunity to study tracks. Shore animals such as crabs, snails, lizards, turtles and birds all leave fascinating calling-cards for anyone to read. Insects too leave their mark. Tracks are as different and varied as the animals that make them.

Tracking can be an absorbing interest. A walk in the woods or along the shore will increase your powers of observation as you speculate on how the "other half lives," and provide an unending source of enjoyment and surprise.

Once you become interested in animal tracks every pattern and trail you see will add to your keen appreciation and understanding of the outdoors and the wildlife in it. Harmar nied at the piano by Mrs. George Leonard.

The last part of the program was devoted to a talk by William Dwight, president of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association.

In introducing him, Mrs. David Hammond said that Mr. Dwight's mother, Mrs. William G. Dwight, is the oldest living woman editor in the country. Mrs. Dwight has been associated with the Holyoke Transcript - Telegram since the 1880s and editor since 1930.

Mr. Dwight is publisher of this newspaper and co-owner of the Greenfield newspaper. In his discussion, he told of the trip he and his wife took last summer to West Berlin, which he termed "an island of Freedom." If he had had doubts about the advisability of the U. S. pouring money, food and supplies into West Berlin they were dispelled when he saw what had been accomplished there, he said. He asked us to imagine living in an area the size of the Northfield community with no place to go on foot or by car, only by plane. Only two trains leave the city and they go at night, darkened, with no stops until they reach Hamburg and Frankfurt. These are available only to military personnel.

THE NORTHFIELD (MASS.) PRESS
Friday, February 22, 1957

Mr. Dwight then spoke of their visit to a refugee camp; the reception center which can hold 3000, the 400 people who come there daily, and the means of screening these exiles. He said that we had made a "solid investment" in West Berlin and the Germans are living up to their obligations.

After defining freedom as "the right to know," Mr. Dwight cited "executive" or "closed" sessions of state and municipal groups, especially those directing the expenditure of taxpayers' money, as instances where freedom is being throttled to a degree, at least, in our own country.

'Dr. Faustus,' Marlowe Drama, Is Scheduled at Amherst College

"Doctor Faustus, famous Elizabethan play by Christopher Marlowe, opens its six-performance run at Kirby Memorial theater at Amherst College, Amherst, tonight, Feb. 22, at 8:15 p.m.

With such lines as "Is this the face that launched a thousand ships and burnt the topless towers of Ilium?" the play is outstanding poetically, according to Professor Edwin B. Pettet, director. "It would appear also to be the product of the most extreme theatrical casualness," says Dr. Pettet. "It lacks . . . dramatic coherence, and its interludes of comedy strike us as feeble at best."

"Regardless, Marlowe has turned these vices of style into virtues that keep his play from being earthbound. Seen in its entirety, it has sweep and power and brilliance. One of the most significant morality plays of all times, the play dramatizes the struggle of man in his search for redemption. The final damnation of Faustus to an eternal hell of loneliness and despair is written tragically and humanely."

The Masquers' major winter production is mounted on a striking four-level, non-objective set designed by Prof. Charles E. Rogers, who also designed the elaborate costumes. Lighting and sound, including the infernal effects from hell, were designed by Prof. Ralph C. McGoun. Costumes were made by a group of faculty wives headed by Mrs. Theodore Soller.

Leading roles are played by John Sommers as Dr. Faustus; Chauncey D. Howell as Mephistophilis; Peter Kline as Wagner; Robert West as Robin, and Ralph Lee as Ralph, with a supporting cast of 36 devils, sins, scholars, clerics and others.

"Faustus" will be presented Feb. 22, 23, 25, 26 and 27 at 8:15 p.m. and Feb. 23 at 2:30 p.m. An exhibit of material showing the development of stages and theaters, especially in the time of Shakespeare and Marlowe, will be on display in the lounge and lobby of Kirby during the run of the play.

associated with Cornell since 1932. He has been a consultant for the U. S. Department of State, an advisor to the International Institute of Arts and Letters, an executive of the Modern Language Assn. and a member of the Association of American Teachers of German.

Equally at home in Anglo-American and German letters, Dr. Lange is particularly well qualified to interpret Goethe's Faust to an American audience. His published works include a study of 18th century English literature, an investigation of American methods of criticism, a treatise on modern German literature, contributions to the Columbia Dictionary of Modern European Literature and five recent books on Goethe and his works.
